The Challenge Is On!

Again this year the Twin Palms 4-H Club is challenging all the Shasta County Clubs for the most pop-tabs collected. This terrific community service project helps to support the Ronald McDonald House in Sacramento. Last year the county collected enough pop-tops to pay for families needing to stay several nights at the Ronald McDonald House. So exercise those fingers and start pulling those pop-tabs! 1st and 2nd place prizes will be awarded to the two clubs with tops weighing the most. Can your club break their last year's record?

New Leader Orientation Offered in Burney

If you interested in teaching a 4-H project, there will be an orientation on Wednesday, January 28, 5:30 p.m. at Gepettos Pizza in Burney. A minimum of six hours of instruction is all that is needed for a completed non-animal project. Let your club community leaders know your interest. Three things must be completed before your project can begin:

1. Fill out an enrollment form and pay your fee.
2. Obtain a fingerprinting form from the 4-H office and be fingerprinted through the Sheriff's Office (cost: $18).
3. Attend a new leader orientation.

CLUB & PROJECT CONNECTION

Cottonwood 4-H & Shooting Sports

Written by Stratton Cloninger, Cottonwood 4-H

Shooting Sports held their first meeting on October 19th. We met at the Redding Gun Club. We shot a lot of shells. We shot at trap with shotguns. The Shooting Sports project has a great 20 gauge shotgun that we got to shoot. We learned about gun safety, proper safety equipment, and what size shells to bring. It was a great time and a good learning experience. Neill and Tom are great leaders for this project.

Written by Skylar Cloninger, Cottonwood 4-H

On November 16th some project members attended a Turkey Shoot held by the Redding Gun Club. They were giving away turkeys or hams for the best shots in a round. Many members from Cottonwood 4-H were winners in this competition. Stratton Cloninger, Rick Covey, Dylon Rosen, Dustin Canavan, Trevor Bowman, and Tyler Carter all won prizes at this shoot. Fun was had by all.

Shooting Competition Between Brothers

Written by Rick Covey and Submitted by Taylor Renihan, Cottonwood 4-H Reporter,

A shooting contest between brothers happened at the shooting sports meeting on November 23rd. The Annie Oakley Shooting game was between two brothers from the Cottonwood 4-H Club. Both boys did really good. Five rounds shot, with the oldest brother, Stratton Cloninger, declared the winner and younger brother, Skylar came in second.

Black Butte 4-H Helps the Community

Submitted by Kierstin Martin, Black Butte 4-H Reporter

Black Butte 4-H group has been busy with community services. October 25th, 2008, they ran their Chicken Flicker Game and at the annual Halloween Carnival held at Black Butte Elementary. Chairmen, Anthony Shockey, reported that there were six people working the shifts and tons of people came to play the game. The committee member's job consisted of setting out baskets to catch the rubber chickens, and the catapults to fling them, as well as collecting the chickens back up for another launch session. He reports that they were unable to fling the chickens inside the building though and were told it would be fine if they moved outside. They mentioned the game may be outside if Black Butte 4-H would prefer from now on.

October 30th officer Kierstin Martin had the opportunity to help at Shasta County Older Adult Policy Council's 6th Annual Soup Kitchen. The funds of this event are used to help seniors who would otherwise have to choose between food, medication and paying utility bills. Kierstin reports that she spent her time picking up the plates of finished soups and brought more to others. She had many opportunities to talk with some who were former 4-H leaders for many years and spoke with others who recalled all their years in 4-H. She reports that the Record Searchlight reporter present asked her a few questions and that she even recited the 4-H pledge with an elderly lady who blissfully recalled her 4-H experience. Kierstin enjoyed every moment of this event, reporting that work seems fun when you care about others. It is a nice chance to show your appreciation for the people who have done so much for us. Community service should be an honor, not a chore. Black Butte 4-H encourages you to show your thankfulness, be appreciative and take pride in helping in this free land of the U.S.A. Just like our 4-H pledge states, "I pledge my head to clearer thinking, my heart to greater loyalty, my hands to larger service, my health to better living. For my club, my community, my country and my world."

CLUB & PROJECT CONNECTION CONTINUED

Cow Creek 4-H Busy in Their Club

Submitted by Ciera Barry, Cow Creek 4-H

We have already had our second community club meeting of the year! We have some new members and we have added a couple of new projects: As of right now, our club has swine, goat, photography, arts and crafts, sheep and community service. The arts & crafts project has already met twice and we have made Tye-Die t-shirts and beaded animals. The breeding goats project has met and several of the members went to a show in Red Bluff in September and did very well. Our community service project has just finished it's first service and that was helping out at the Palo Cedro Pumpkin Run and party. The swine, photography and sheep projects are getting underway this month. We are all looking forward to a great 4-H Year!

Lone Tree has A Sheep Project

Submitted by Corey Loomis, Lone Tree 4-H Reporter

Lone Tree 4-H hasn't had a sheep project in about 6 years. Kate Loomis stepped up to the task this year. She offered her 14 stall barn on her 10 acre ranch in Anderson to house all the sheep. She opened it up to kids who live in subdivisions and have no where to keep a lamb. It makes it fun for the kids to walk and take care of the lambs together. Kate had 8 lamb kids this year. The word has spread and now Lone Tree has 15 lamb kids signed up for next year. Kathie Robison has taken the challenge and became the sheep co-leader. Kate & Kathie are looking forward to a busy year. Their lamb kids have already started a community service project making kennels for Shampooles Grooming in Anderson. They are learning how to stretch and piece together chainlink, sink posts, pour cement and do a lot of calculating and math.

Cottonwood 4-H Photography Project Visits Crown Camera

Submitted by Taylor Renihan, Cottonwood 4-H Reporter

We had a fun Photography meeting last month. We have a new leader, Shannon, and she had our meeting at Crown Camera. Everyone was able to print (2) 5x7 photos, and get all their prints on a CD. We also learned how to make a DVD slide show and also got to take that home. At the end of the meeting we were able to have a tour of how the prints come out of their machines. This was a lot of fun and it was very nice of Crown Camera to have us.

Twin Palms 4-H - Community Service

Submitted by Dani Plake, Twin Palms Reporter

The members of Twin Palms 4-H are working hard already this year. We had our first community service in October. Our club adopted part of the River Trail, from Keswick Dam to the Stress Ribbon Bridge. We had a great time cleaning up the trail. There is now a sign up by the bridge showing that we are taking care of that part of the trail. Shanelle Hockenberry was the first person in our club to do a presentation this year. It was on how to show a rabbit. She did a great job! Fun Night was a lot of fun. The photography booth, pop toss and fish booth all did great! It was great watching everyone carry around their fish. We also just finished up our Blanket Drive for Haven Humane and Coat Drive for the Good News Rescue Mission. Thank you to all the 4-H members and their families for providing the blankets and coats.

Does Competition Always Help Children Strive to Do Their Best?

Research shows overwhelmingly that kids learn more when they are working together than when they are competing. Superior performance does not require competition—in fact, it usually seems to require that absence of competition. Most of us have been “trained” to believe that a competitive situation produces better performances.

In 1981 David and Roger Johnson and their colleagues published an ambitious review of others’ findings (122 studies) on this topic. Their results: 65 studies found that cooperation promotes high achievement than independent work in 108 studies, while 6 did not, and 42 found no difference. The superiority of cooperation held for all subject areas and all age groups.

The researchers found that sometimes conflicts, rivalries, and small cliques formed as a result of completion. These conflicts arose among participants, parents, and even spectators.

Is competition Healthy for all Youth?

People tend to take one of two positions on the subject of healthy competition: enthusiastic support and qualified support. People who give qualified support often say excessive competition is to be avoided, and they do not agree with a culture that supports winning at all costs. Some argue it is the way we compete or the extent of our competitiveness that is important. Still others argue that “healthy competition” is a contradiction in terms.

VALLEY PRESENTATION DAY CATEGORIES

PRESENTATION DESCRIPTIONS

Below are some brief descriptions of the different types of presentations. Each community club was provided a copy of the judging rubric forms and a more detailed description of the types of presentations. Talk with your community leader. You can also find a presentation manual on the State 4-H website at www.ca4h.org.

Demonstration: teaches a skill by the “show how” method. Posters or equivalent visual aids are used by the member to enhance the teaching process. The demonstration will include a title, materials, process, and summary posters or visual aids.

Illustrated Talk: teaches a concept or skill that would be impractical to demonstrate in a classroom setting. Posters or equivalent visual aids should include at least an introduction/title card, process card and a summary card. Models or other visual aids can be used to enhance the presentation.

Scientific Demonstration: uses the steps used by scientists to answer questions and solve problems. The scientific process includes the following steps: 1) Ask a question 2) Form a hypothesis of what you expect the answer to your question to be. 3) Test the hypothesis by conducting an experiment. 4) Analyze the results of the tests and information you have gathered. 5) Draw conclusions regarding the hypothesis from the tests. 6) Communicate the results.

Educational Display: an organized visual presentation of a program or a concept. A display should be designed to convey its message in a limited amount of time. Educational displays do not include science fair exhibits, other depictions of process, project exhibits or collections. Card Table Display – Approx. 30” x 30” and features a tri-fold poster board that includes a title, the member’s name and 4-H club and a depiction of the program or concept. Panel Display – 48” x48” and is a vertical, free standing display that is presented on an easel. The display includes a title, the members name and 4-H club and a depiction of the program or concept.

Prepared Speech: may only be given as an individual activity. This format requires that the member write and deliver his/her own speech. The speaker will either persuade or educate the audience on a single issue or topic dealing with society or individuals. The topic is only limited by the age appropriateness of the topic for the member and good taste. The purpose of this category is to encourage members to give a speech in which they seek out accurate information, organize it into a useful form and competently present it.

Impromptu Speech: involves speeches that the member has written him/herself at the competition. One at a time, the members will randomly draw a piece of paper with a topic on it. The topics will be developed from the pre announced categories for the event. From the time that the member is given the topic, he/she will have three minutes to prepare a speech.

Interpretive Reading: allows the speakers to read any published written work, that is age appropriate and in good taste. (Examples may include, but are not limited to: children’s stories, poetry, essays, speeches, articles, excerpts from novels that stand alone, etc.) Reciting the 4-H Creed would be allowed here at the County Event.

Audio-Visual Presentation: include any informational or instructional program presented with slides, video, or digital representations. A presentation must take advantage of the medium. It should not be a substitute for another kind of presentation, such as a demonstration or prepared talk. Only individuals may enter slide/video/digital presentations.

Problem Solving Presentation: format provides senior members the opportunity to use a prepared fact pattern as the basis for developing an action plan. During the competition the member will present the action plan using posters, overhead projector slides or computer generated slides. The selected medium must be used to effectively deliver the main points of the plan. Fact patterns may include social issues, business issues and 4-H program issues. Appropriate fact patterns will be developed for each age group.

Fountain of Youth

Young Americans and the Future of Voting

Young voters, commonly called the Millennial Generation or Generation Y, are large, growing, and the most diverse voting bloc in history. All statistics were found on: <http://yda.org>.

21Percent of the electorate (41.9 million) in 2006, were voters ages 18-29. Millennials will be nearly 45 million strong in 2008.

2015The year in which this generation will make up one-third of the electorate.

6.5Million young voters participated in the primary contests or caucuses this year, an increase of 103% over 2004.

19Percent of California's young voters turned out for the 2008 Presidential Primary. The California youth voters cast 951,000 ballots. That's a share of 14% of the voters.

10.8Million young voters went to the polls in 2006, up nearly two million from 2002.

69Percent of young people say they are likely to vote in this election and 49% say they are very likely to vote.

2To one margin, young people support Democrats and, of the 2.2 million new young voters this cycle, two million voted for a Democrat for president. Nearly half of 18-29 year olds (47%) identify as Democrats, up from 40% in 2006. Democrats made gains with young independents while Republicans lost ground with their young voters.

Fountain of Youth Facts is a monthly online list of statistics that provides a different and hopefully thought provoking profile of today's youth. It is produced by the 4-H Center for Youth Development and the California Communities Program which are ANR sponsored programs. Anyone wishing to submit an item should email cmatthews@ucdavis.edu.

News From the Director

A new research study on youth's use of digital media, Living and Learning with New Media: Summary of Findings from the Digital Youth Project, was recently released by researchers at the University of Southern California and the University of California, Berkeley. Kids' Informal Learning with Digital Media: "An Ethnographic Investigation of Innovative Knowledge Cultures" is a three-year collaborative project funded by the John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation. The digital youth project explores how kids use digital media in their everyday lives.

Social network sites, online games, video-sharing sites, and gadgets such as iPods and mobile phones are now fixtures of youth culture. According to the report, "They have so permeated young lives that it is hard to believe that less than a decade ago these technologies barely existed. Today's youth may be coming of age and struggling for autonomy and identity as did their predecessors, but they are doing so amid new worlds for communication, friendship, play, and self-expression." An especially interesting finding of the report is a recommendation on the role adults should play in facilitating young people's engagement with the digital media. "Contrary to adult perceptions, while hanging out online, youth are picking up basic social and technical skills they need to fully participate in contemporary society. Erecting barriers to participation deprives teens of access to these forms of learning. Participation in the digital age means more than being able to access serious online information and culture. Youth could benefit from educators being more open to forms of experimentation and social exploration that are generally not characteristic of educational institutions." The soon to be fully launched ACCESS 4-H site will provide a new safe environment for 4-H youth to join in a new form of 4-H communication, friendship and self-expression. Watch for more information on ACCESS 4-H. For more information on this study visit the following website: <http://digitalyouth.ischool.berkeley.edu/report>.

A two-page summary incorporates a short, accessible version of the findings. The White Paper is a 30-page document prepared for the MacArthur Foundation's Digital Media and Learning Series. The book is an online version of our forthcoming book with MIT Press and incorporates the insights from 800 youth and young adults and over 5000 hours of online observations.
